Post navigation Ancient Egyptian Black Smelting For thousands of years our ancestors throughout the world have used black sands for making copper. In the south of Egypt, copper and other metals have been found since antiquity. For most of the history, people used bronze for various purposes. Copper is one of the most important metals in the world, because the places where it can be found are widely spread and in abundance. It is easy to obtain and has many physical properties. However, one of the disadvantages of copper is that its oxidation can be harmful. Because of this, from ancient times people have always been looking for a way to make the metal that can avoid corrosion and protect it from corrosion. In the past few years, this process has been simplified and made faster. Of course, the same theory was used for other metals, which also produce good products with considerable benefit. Judging by his initial reaction on Wednesday, Hamlin is certainly

Dhongela and other Kalbeliya Thakur kings hold sway over many of the labyrinthine mud-brick citadels, palaces, and fortresses of Bijapur district. (Text from Eminent Monuments of Andhra Pradesh & Telangana) The Kalbeliya Thakuris are found all over most villages in the Bijapur district of Karnataka to have retained some of their ancestral territory over the centuries and are now well established as the most dominant communities of Bijapur. Though they are supposed to be the Maharashtrian Kshatriyas, they still closely resemble Goanites and the Karhatajs of the Konkan coast. They moved in during the early 15th century, after which they multiplied till the rule of the Vijayanagar kings who were the first to have a more conciliatory attitude towards them. The Thakuris then prospered under many rulers who fostered their sojourn in Bijapur; hence the town is still called Bijapur-Kalbeliya. There are also small and medium-sized settlements of Kalbeliya Thakuris in many villages of Basar, Bellary, Danapur and Raichur districts of which Channapatna is the biggest. There is also a large Agrahara of Kalbeliya Thakuris in Yadajirapura of Nelamangala Taluk. It is believed that the majority of the Kalbeliya Thakuris settled in northern and eastern Karnataka was a result of dissension between two brothers - Ramayya and Nayaraman Agra. Ramayya wanted to go to North-east and to start a new outpost. His brother Nayaraman was agitating to keep this kingdom for himself and prevailed on his followers to accompany him in his quest. The Kalbeliya Thakuris then crossed the Tungabhadra river and went into the dry lands. They called this settlement Bijapur and adopted the Tulu language and customs as their native idiom. It was Ramayya who built the first building, called the first Govinda Linga and took the name of his tribe. The very word Thakur is known to derive from Kalbeliya and that is why it was called Kalbeliya Thakur. They adopted the title Thakur as a honorific term. The Th

•"Jacob" is a free, exploratory puzzle game where players are challenged to help a man who needs money to lift his blind family out of poverty. In order to do so, he must pay for a series of tasks in a simple and sequential manner. But the family has a few problems. Not only is he blind, but also he is illiterate. This means he must walk with a white cane and hope that the player can read all the information, correctly identify locations and fetch items. The player can earn money by finding "things" in the game world. Thus, the player does not need to keep track of money separately, but can spend time and effort in finding what he needs. The game can be experienced in 15 simple steps. These steps cover all the actions you will have to take in the game, to solve the problem of the client. Most of all, the player learns about the social impact of poverty in Colombia, and may even develop a closer understanding of how to fight inequality in our own lives. Please note that no personal information will be collected, no account information kept for any period of time, and no money is required. CONTENT WARNING: Jacob is an interactive, educational experience. Although the tasks he must complete are simple, they may not be suitable for children. REQUIREMENTS: •Windows •X-Box One, X-Box 360, X-Box 360 Slim and X-Box One S •Game Controller (for PC players). DISCLAIMER: Please note that the game Jacob is free to play and has no financial elements. But the player may choose to obtain more money in order to speed up his progress or to unlock additional features. Vendor: T.Louise Arts Production Vendor: GeckoGames Vendor: Ivonne Honey Credit to:
